Abstract

A method for generating charging information in a communication system is disclosed. The method includes providing a gateway with information regarding a time zone of a user equipment provided with network access by an access entity. The method also includes providing a service for the user equipment via the access entity and the gateway and generating charging information based on the information regarding the time zone for charging for the service.